DIVISION OF POLICING NEWS

NOVEMBER 2019

From the Chair

It's November which means the annual ASC conference in San Francisco takes center stage. The Division is excited to sponsor a number of sessions covering timely areas of research on police organizational structure, bias and procedural justice, education, and body-worn cameras (please see page 7 for specific times and locations). We are also proud to sponsor three student panels, which will include members of the DOP Executive Board as discussants (please see page 6 for specific times and locations). We encourage you to come out and support your fellow Division scholars and researchers, and especially the student panels featuring the future of our field!

On Thursday, November 14th from 3:30 to 4:50pm (in Salon C2, B2 level) our annual awards and reception event will take place. Vice Chair, Jacinta Gau, will host the festivities, which will start with a talk from Professor Willard "Will" Oliver titled, August Vollmer: A Policing Pioneer and Founder of ASC. Willard will be joined by Chief Andrew Greenwood of the Berkeley Police Department. As we consider our policing presence in the larger ASC organization, there is no better place to begin than by considering Vollmer's contributions to the policing field and the academy. Please plan on attending our reception, which will also include this year's exceptional award winners of lifetime achievement, distinguished scholar, early career, outstanding book, and outstanding student paper (please see pages 2-4 for the awardees). I want to thank DOP members for their nominations and the Awards Committee (Janne Gaub, Tri Keah Henry, Julie Hibdon, Jason Ingram, Charles LoFaso, Kenneth Novak, Michael Rossler, Jenna Savage, and Bill Terrill) for their efforts in selecting these well-deserving individuals.

Finally, while we are constantly working on our website (www.ascpolicing.org), our social media presence is in need of a facelift. We are pleased to announce that Executive Counselor Melissa Morabito will be working to update our Twitter (@ascpolicing) pages. If you have suggestions and/or would like to assist Melissa in her efforts, please email ascpolicing@gmail.com.

The DOP Executive Board looks forward to seeing you in San Francisco!

Best,

Gene Paoline

2019 Division of Policing Award Winners

Lifetime Achievement Award

David Weisburd is Distinguished Professor of Criminology, Law and Society at George Mason University and Walter E. Meyer Professor of Law and Criminal Justice at the Hebrew University. He is well known for his research on policing and crime hot spots, and recently chaired the National Academies of Sciences Committee on Proactive Policing. He is author or editor of more than 30 books and more than 200 scientific articles that cover a wide range of criminal justice research topics. He has received many international prizes for his innovative research including the Stockholm Prize in Criminology (2010), the Robert Boruch Award for Contributions to Research that Informs Public Policy (2014), and the Sutherland (2014) and Vollmer Awards (2017) from the American Society of Criminology. In 2015 he received the Israel Prize.

Distinguished Scholar Award

Anthony A. Braga is the Elmer V. H. and Eileen M. Brooks Distinguished Professor and Director of the School of Criminology and Criminal Justice at Northeastern University. He also serves as the Director of the Center on Crime and Community Resilience. His record combines deep engagement in Boston and an international reputation as a leading researcher on crime prevention. He collaborates with criminal justice, social service, and community-based organizations to produce high impact scholarship, randomized field experiments, and policy advice on the prevention of crime at problem places, the control of gang violence, and reductions in access to firearms by criminals. He has served as principal investigator or co-principal investigator on projects totaling more than $18 million dollars in external funding from a variety of federal, state, and private grant-making. He is a fellow of the American Society of Criminology (ASC). He is also a past president and fellow of the Academy of Experimental Criminology (AEC), and the 2014 recipient of its Joan McCord Award recognizing his commitment to randomized controlled experiments. The practical value of his work in violence reduction in disadvantaged neighborhoods has been recognized by numerous awards. He holds an M.P.A. from Harvard University, and a Ph.D. in criminal justice from Rutgers University.

Celebrate our award winners on Thursday, November 14th, 3:30 to 4:50 pm at the Salon C2, B2 Level.

Early Career Award

Cory Haberman is an assistant professor in the School of Criminal Justice and Director of the Institute of Crime Science at the University of Cincinnati. He received a doctorate from Temple University's Department of Criminal Justice in 2015 where his dissertation on hot spots policing in Philadelphia was supported by the National Institute of Justice (NIJ) Graduate Research Fellowship Program. To date, he has over 20 publications in the field's leading outlets focusing on understanding spatial-temporal crime patterns and police effectiveness. For the past two years, He has been working with the City of Cincinnati and the Cincinnati Police Department on refreshing its implementation of the City's Historic Collaborative Agreement, including assisting with redesigning the police department's processes and procedures for community problem-oriented policing and developing an analytical framework for assessing bias-free policing on an on-going basis. In 2019, he was selected by NIJ to be a LEADS Academic where he will work with many others to continue advancing evidence-based policing.

Michael D. White and Henry F. Fradella's Stop and Frisk: The Use and Abuse of a Controversial Policing Tactic tells the story of stop-and-frisk. Although stop-and-frisk has a long history as a policing tactic rooted in particularized, reasonable suspicion of criminal activity, several U.S. jurisdictions morphed stop-and-frisk into a broad and aggressive crime control strategy. The recent experiences in many jurisdictions demonstrate a strong disconnect between constitutionally sanctioned principles and policing practice. We argue that stop-and-frisk has a legitimate place in policing today, but changes must be made to prevent officers from engaging in racially biased or otherwise improper and illegal behavior during stops of citizens. This book describes those changes and charts a course forward for the proper, effective, and constitutional use of stop-and-frisk in 21st century policing.

Outstanding Student Paper Award

Rachel Lautenschlager is a doctoral candidate in the Department of Sociology at the University of Miami. In her research she draws from sociological and socio-legal perspectives to examine sources of racial, ethnic, and class inequality in the criminal justice system. Her award-winning paper, which was recently published in Justice Quarterly, draws from three sociological frameworks in order to understand and dissect the social processes that lead to an inequitable distribution of police use-of-force across neighborhoods in New York City. The implications of her study speak to the importance of conceptualizing police use-of-force broadly because racial disparities may be obscured when looking only at fatal force incidents.

ASC 2019 Reception and Award Ceremony

The Division will once again host a Reception and Awards Ceremony at the ASC Annual Meeting in San Francisco. The ceremony will be held on Thursday, November 14th, 3:30 to 4:50 pm, Salon C2, B2 Level.

We are excited to have Professor Willard Oliver (Sam Houston State University), along with current Berkeley Police Chief Andrew Greenwood, speak about the influence of August Vollmer on the field of policing and the American Society of Criminology. As many know (or do not know), Vollmer is perhaps the greatest example of an individual that transcended both police practice and education. It is only fitting that a San Francisco ASC meeting recognize his work.

Vice Chair Jacinta Gau will host the reception and present the 2019 Division awards to our award recipients. Snacks, drinks, and additional Division of Policing “swag” will be available. We hope to see everyone there, and all are welcome to attend so bring a friend!
